Charles A Spiller, age 65, passed away Friday, Sept. 17, 2021. Charles died peacefully in his sleep, at his home in Clark County, Wash.

Formerly of Missouri and Texas, Charles was born Sept. 2, 1956, in Vandalia, Ill. He was the youngest son of William Charles Spiller and Betty Norma Jean (McVay) Spiller of Bridgeport. He was a graduate of Bridgeport High School.

Charles met and married Naomi Gonzales Aug. 25, 1979, in Denton. They were married 42 years and raised their seven children in Texas and Missouri.

Charles was a visionary entrepreneur who was involved in various business ventures over his lifetime. He was a corporate personnel trainer and a homeschool teacher to his children and four of his grandsons. He was a lifelong learner, earning a communications and public address degree from the University of North Texas and a master of psychology from Walden University. When he passed away, he was a few hours short of a Master of Business Administration and continuing his doctorate in social psychology. He loved music and thought and wrote expansively on a wide variety of subjects. Most importantly, he was an avid Bible reader and confident in his salvation. We will miss his humor and great hugs.

Charles was preceded in death by his father, Charles Spiller.

He is survived by his wife, Naomi of Battle Ground, Wash.; children Camden Spiller and wife, Sarah, of Battle Ground, Riley Spiller of Austin, Camille Austin and husband, Andrew, of Denver, Colo., Emily Spiller of Denver, Emerson Spiller, Bradi Oxenford and husband, Travis, of Denver and Mac Spiller and wife, Heidi, of Brush Prairie, Wash.; mother Betty Spiller of Bridgeport; sisters Janie Luxton and husband, Ernest, of Weatherford, Patty Ford and husband, Thomas, of Rosanky; niece Lauren Segura and husband, Kellen, of Austin; and 17 grandchildren.
