Rhome, Texas.

Andrew was the kind of kid that would literally give you his shoes if you asked him for them. He would do anything for people that needed help. He moved to Texas to try and become a better young man. Andrew was an amazing little brother. He loved it when I called him my Big brother because he was taller than me or our sisters. His laugh was very contagious. Andrew wanted to show this world that there was good. So that his nieces and nephews would grow up in a safe place. He was the best son anyone could ask for as well. Always helping out whether it be lifting heavy stuff or even cleaning up the house. Our parents loved that about him and wanted to see him grow into an even more incredible young man. We will always love him. We will always miss him too.
